The Spell Didn't Work.

An amusing scene was witnessed in the Fourth Magistrate's Court yesterday, relates the Singapore Straits Times. A Javanese was arraigned on a charge of theft. As the man entered the dock he threw on the ground a hen's egg, and then commenced to chew some "serih." This was supposed to work a spell on the magistrate and cause him to discharge the accused. Unfortunately for the schemes of the Javanese, he was seen by the Malay constable in charge of him. The Malay seized the Javanese by the throat and choked him until he spat up the "serih," and so broke the spell. The case was postponed.

In Bostonese.

"Come in, Waldonia," said her mother. "You have been in that swing long enough."

"Presently, mamma," answered the little Boston girl. "I am permitting the carnivorous quadruped of the genus Feline to placken its physical activities and pass by imperceptible gradations into a condition of total extinct vitality."—Chicago Tribune.
